INTRODUCING RENAISSANCE HOME CONNECT

Increase Reading Practice and Raise Parental Involvement

Every educator knows that children perform better at school when their parents are actively involved in the learning process. Research supports the importance of parents in education. In fact, studies show that parental involvement is an even better predictor of student achievement than socio-economic status.

Renaissance Home Connect links the school to home via the Internet, allowing teachers and parents to work together to ensure students' success. With Home Connect, you can extend reading practice beyond the classroom and increase parental involvement in their children's reading activities.

By logging on from their computers, parents can access real-time information at work or at home to help them keep their children motivated and eliminate surprises. Home Connect focuses on positive rather than negative information and doesn't put any extra burden on the teacher because it pulls data from your school's Accelerated Reader software.

With Renaissance Home Connect, students and parents can:

- Receive updates on reading progress.
- Monitor progress toward goals.
- View all books that have been read.
- See number of quizzes taken and words read.
- View average percent correct and points earned.
- See results for the last quiz taken.
- View current reader certification status.
- Search for the next book to read.
- View vocabulary words learned.
- And much, much more!
