

CHAPTER 10

MEDIATION

INTRODUCTION

Mediation is one of three formal methods for resolving disputes in special education at the local level. Other methods are formal complaint, which is discussed in Chapter 11, and due process hearing, which is discussed in Chapter 12. To begin the process of mediation, both parties must agree to mediate. Either the parents or a school representative may suggest this option initially by asking the other party if they are willing to mediate the disputed issues. The cost of mediation is borne by the State; there are no costs to either the parents or the local school district.

The use of mediation can have the following benefits over a formal complaint or due process hearing:

- Mediation uses the strengths of both participants to solve problems.
- Because it is voluntary throughout the process, and because a mediator has no authority to order any particular resolution, mediation is a safe way for both parties to offer and consider alternatives.
- Mediation can be less antagonistic.
- Mediation is less time consuming.
- Mediation is less costly for both parties.
- If an agreement is reached, it is written and committed to by the parties, themselves, rather than ordered by a hearing officer or the Kansas State Department of Education.
- A negotiated agreement may help with future positive relationships.

Forms to request mediation should be available in each school district. The building administrator, special education director, or the mediation coordinator at Special Education and Title Services (SETS), at the Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) may be contacted for the forms. The forms can also be found at <https://www.ksde.org/Default.aspx?tabid=603>. Each of the following topics in the State mediation process is discussed within this chapter:

- A. Mediation Process
- B. Mediation Requests
- C. Mediation Participants
- D. Special Education Mediators
- E. Mediation Results

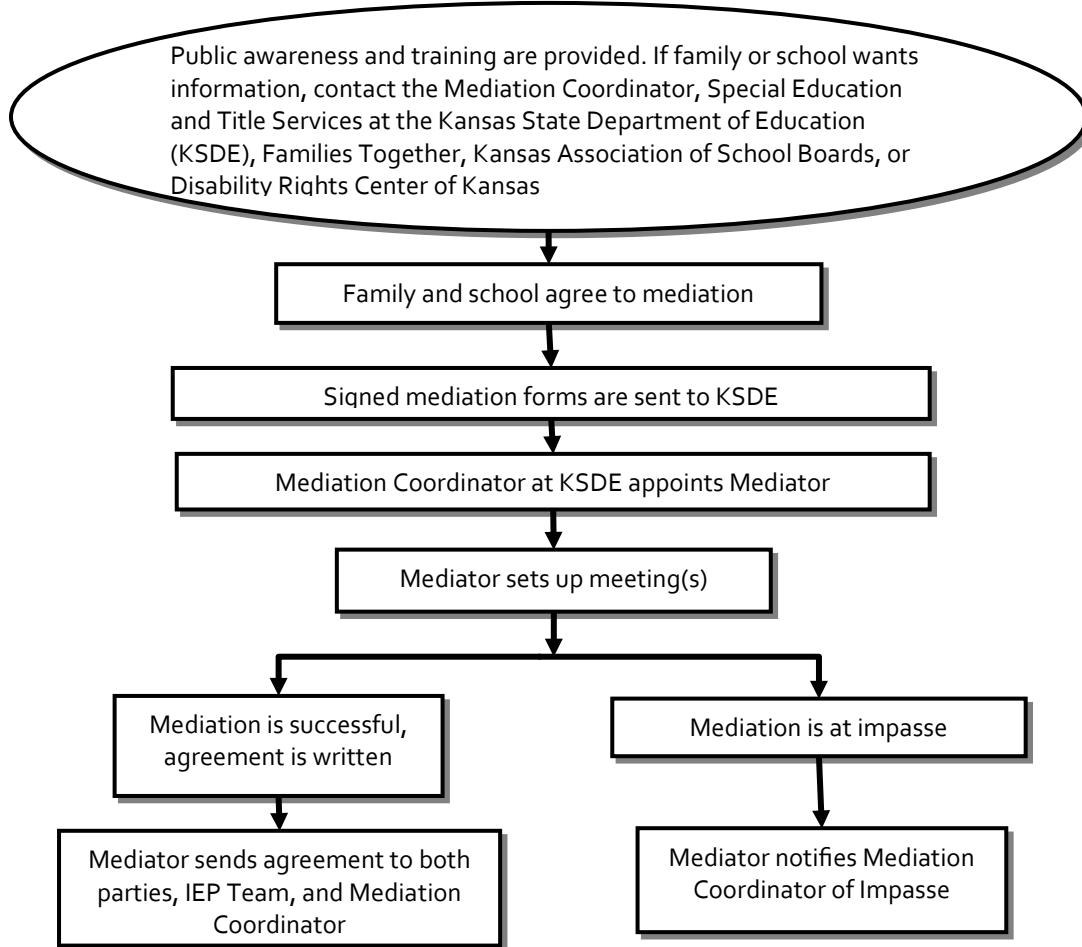

A. MEDIATION PROCESS

The Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) has established mediation procedures to allow school districts and parents to resolve any matter regarding special education, including matters arising prior to the filing of a due process complaint. State statute, at K.S.A. 72-3438, and State regulations at K.A.R. 91-40-28, and 91-40-29 set up the following provisions for special education mediation in Kansas:

- The mediation process is voluntary for both the parents and the school.
- Mediation may not be used to deny or delay a parent's right to a due process hearing, or any other parent right.
- Mediation is conducted by a qualified, impartial mediator who is trained in effective mediation techniques.
- KSDE maintains a list of qualified mediators and appoints the special education mediator.
- KSDE is responsible for the costs of mediation.
- Mediation must be provided in a timely manner and at a location that is convenient for both parties in the dispute.
- Agreements reached during mediation must be in writing and must include the resolution of each issue for which agreement was reached. Every mediation agreement must also include a statement that:
 - Discussions during mediation must be kept confidential and may not be used as evidence in any subsequent due process hearings or civil proceedings;
 - Each party understands that the agreement is legally binding upon them; and
 - The agreement may be enforced in state or federal court.

The goal of the parties in mediation is to reach an agreement that is workable for all. If an agreement is reached it is put in written form by the mediator and signed by both parties. If issues prove to be irresolvable, the mediator will declare that an impasse has been reached and the mediation will be terminated. Below is a flow chart showing the steps involved in the mediation process.

SPECIAL EDUCATION MEDIATION PROCESS

B. MEDIATION REQUESTS

When parents or school personnel disagree about a special education issue, either party may request mediation. However, both parties must agree to use this process. Therefore, the first step in initiating a special education mediation is to ask the other party if it is willing to mediate the disputed issue. Mediation may be requested even if a due process hearing has been filed. This is one reason that the timeline for mediation is short. Mediation must be completed within the due process timeline, and mediation may not be used to delay the parents' right to due process. However, the due process hearing timeline may be extended by the due process hearing officer for a specific period of time during the mediation process if requested by the parties (34 C.F.R. 300.515(c)). Mediation is often viewed as a win-win situation, a positive process that may often avoid potential litigation. At a minimum, mediation must be available to resolve disputes relating to special education, which may include issues such as:

1. Identification,
2. Evaluation,
3. Placement, and
4. Provision of a free appropriate public education to the child.

Once both parties agree to mediation, they must complete and sign the three required forms, which are mailed to the mediation coordinator at the Kansas State Department of Education (KSDE) Special Education and Title Services, Landon State Office Building, 900 SW Jackson, Suite 620, Topeka, KS 66612).

- (1) Agreement to Mediate: This one-page form indicates that both parties: (a) understand that mediation is voluntary; (b) agree to enter into mediation; (c) agree to abide by the procedures and guidelines for special education mediations; (d) agree not to record (electronically or otherwise) a mediation session; (e) agree that the mediator will not make decisions regarding the disputed issues; and (f) understand that agreements must be in writing and are legally binding and enforceable in a state or federal court. Each party must sign this agreement;
- (2) Confidentiality Notice: This one page form indicates that both parties have been notified of the following: (a) discussions during mediation are confidential; (b) they may not call the mediator or anyone associated with the mediator as a witness in any judicial, administrative or arbitration proceeding regarding the mediated dispute; (c) they may not subpoena or demand the production of any records, notes, work product or other written information of the mediator; and
- (3) Request for Mediation: This one-page form includes contact information for use by the mediator. The contact information consists of the name, address, and phone number of the parties, the name and birth date of the student and whether or not a due process hearing has also been requested. This form also asks the parties to agree on some preferred dates for which they are both available to mediate. If the parties list some preferred dates on this form, the KSDE will attempt to find a mediator who is available on one of those dates. The preferred dates should be at least seven to ten days after the date of the request for mediation so that the KSDE has time to appoint a mediator and allow the mediator to arrange for a mediation session. If a mediation session is needed more quickly, the parties may request an earlier date by telephone and send the mediation forms to the KSDE electronically. The KSDE will attempt to accommodate all requests.

When KSDE receives a request for a special education mediation, the mediation coordinator immediately appoints a mediator. The mediator notifies both parties and arranges for mediation. The location must be convenient to the parties and should be acceptable to everyone. A neutral location is preferred. If the mediator is not familiar with neutral locations in the area where the mediation will be, the mediator will usually ask the school representative for suggestions (such as a room in a county courthouse or public library). In some cases where neutral sites are not readily available, mediations may be held on school property.

C. MEDIATION PARTICIPANTS

Mediation is an informal process that includes discussion of the issues and proposed resolutions. Generally, discussions include the mediator, the parents, and a school representative. The school representative is often not from the IEP Team, because this group has not been able to reach agreement. Mediation seems to be more successful if the school representative is someone else who is knowledgeable about the issues and has decision making authority.

Generally, the likelihood of reaching an agreement is enhanced by keeping the number of participants to a minimum. However, either the parents or the school representative may ask an outside person to attend. If the parents are not able to participate fully and need assistance (because of reasons such as not speaking English, having a disability themselves, or not fully understanding the issues or procedures), the parents may wish to have an advocate to assist them.

In Kansas, attorneys are allowed to participate in special education mediations. However, mediations generally prove to be more successful when the parties work on their own, without attorneys present. Ultimately, because mediation is a voluntary process, any party that objects to the presence of an attorney may withdraw from the mediation. If for some reason, attorneys or advocates become involved in a mediation session, the mediator will establish ground rules for the participation of advocates or attorneys, again in an effort to ensure that discussions are between the parties to the dispute.

D. SPECIAL EDUCATION MEDIATORS

In Kansas, in order to be considered trained and qualified, mediators must fulfill two requirements:

1. Demonstrate competency in special education law by successfully passing a written examination with at least 90 percent accuracy (a special education law class sponsored or approved by the state board is conducted periodically to help mediators with this requirement); and
2. Complete a program sponsored or approved by the state board concerning effective mediation techniques and procedures, and the role and responsibilities of a mediator (K.A.R. 91-40-29(a)).

After initially qualifying as a mediator, Kansas requires that to remain eligible, special education mediators must have continuing education program in special education law conducted or approved by KSDE (K.A.R. 91-40-29(b)(1)(C)).

Employees of KSDE, local schools or other education agencies, or school boards may not serve as a mediator for special education disputes in the State of Kansas. Others who have a real or perceived conflict of interest may also not serve as special education mediators. Only the Kansas State Department of Education may appoint special education mediators.

E. MEDIATION RESULTS

During mediation, the mediator will work with both parties to reach an agreement. If mediation discussions result in both parties' reaching agreement, the mediator records the results in a written mediation agreement, which is signed by both parties. Although not necessary, the mediation agreement may become part of the student's IEP if agreed to by the parties. It is not necessary for the IEP team to meet, or for the agreement to be added to the IEP because the decisions are enforceable and have been made during the mediation with the responsible parties involved (the parents and the school representative). The actions agreed upon in the mediation should be implemented immediately, unless the mediation agreement specifies otherwise.

If the IEP is changed by adding the mediation agreement, the IEP team may write a new IEP or amend the existing IEP to reflect the mediation agreement. The school is responsible for following up with the required notice and consent forms. The revised IEP is then implemented. If the mediation agreement is not part of the IEP the school must ensure that any person responsible for implementing the agreement is informed of their responsibilities.

If the mediation is not successful, the mediator may declare that the mediation is at impasse and suggest that both parties consider other methods for dispute resolution, such as Formal Complaint (Chapter 11) and/or Due Process (Chapter 12).

1. How are mediators selected to conduct a special education mediation?

The mediation coordinator at the Kansas State Department of Education chooses a mediator on a random basis from a list of trained and qualified mediators. Mediators will have successfully completed a training program designed for special education mediators.

2. What are the qualifications of a special education mediator?

The mediator will:

- Have received formal training in the mediation process and in Federal and State laws and regulations regarding special education;
- Be on an approved list of qualified mediators at KSDE;
- Have no personal or professional interest that would conflict with the mediator’s objectivity;
- Have no prior involvement in any decisions regarding the student's identification, evaluation, special education program, or educational placement;
- Be professional, impartial; and
- Be able to complete the required duties and responsibilities.

3. What is the role of the mediator?

The mediator helps the parents and school representative clarify issues in disagreement and find solutions that satisfy both parties. The mediator serves as:

- Convener--by contacting the parties to arrange for the mediation.
- Educator--by informing the parties about the mediation process and other conflict resolution procedures including due process hearings.
- Communicator and Facilitator--by using strategies to be certain that each party is fully heard in the mediation.
- Translator--by replacing or reframing communication so that both parties are understood and received.
- Questioner and Clarifier--by probing issues and confirming understandings.
- Process Advisor--by suggesting procedures for making progress in mediation including caucus meetings and consultations with others.
- Catalyst--by offering options for consideration, stimulating new perspectives, and offering ideas for consideration.
- Closer--by reducing the agreement to writing and obtaining signatures of both parties.

4. How long does mediation take?

Many mediation sessions have been successfully completed in half a day. The mediator will determine whether progress is being made or whether additional time is needed for resolution.

5. Is special education mediation binding?

If both parties sign the mediation agreement, it is binding on both parties, and is enforceable in a state or federal court.

6. When can mediation be requested?

Mediation can be requested when it is believed that an impasse has been reached at the local level on any special education matter, including issues involving the identification, evaluation, placement of the child, or the provision of a free appropriate public education to the child. Either the parents or the school representative should discuss with the other party if mediation is an option, and should ask for mediation as early as possible. Mediation can occur before or after a special education due process hearing has been requested or when a hearing concerning an interim alternative educational placement is being considered. Mediation cannot be used to deny or delay an impartial special education due process hearing once it has been requested.

7. Who should I call for information or to request mediation?

Information or forms may be requested from a building administrator, special education director, Families Together (800-264-6343), or The Disability Rights Center of Kansas (785-273-9661). You may also contact the mediation coordinator on the Special Education and Title Services Team of the Kansas State Department of Education.

Phone: 800-203-9462 or 785-296-5608

Email: mward@ksde.org

8. How soon is mediation scheduled after the parties request it?

A mediation conference should be scheduled as soon as possible after receiving a request for a mediation conference. Some flexibility is permitted to accommodate availability of both parties. The meeting must be in a place that is convenient for both parties. On the Mediation Request Form, the parties should request specific dates and times when both parties are available. This should allow a reasonable period of time for the selection of a mediator and for the mediator to set up a mediation session. Two weeks is usually enough time to accommodate such a request. One of the reasons time is so critical is that mediation may be requested even if a special education due process hearing has been filed, but the mediation process may not delay the parents' right to due process.

9. Who pays for mediation?

The fee and expenses for the mediator, if any, are paid by Special Education and Title Services at the Kansas State Department of Education. Mediation is available at no cost to the school or the parents.
